We have some ideas to keep this program growing. Michelle wrote a grant for Scio's mentor program and submitted it, and we have been awarded a two-year grant. The first year will be $10,700. If we spend all of this in the first year we will receive the same amount in the second year. We are very excited. What we are going to do to build our program is we are adding 3 days of programming before our in-service day in August to do some curriculum training, program training and then give them time in their classrooms. ### Update from Keltes James:

- As of right now our forestry competition season has come to an end. The next thing we are looking forward to is our upcoming officer at large elections. We had our normal elections in the winter. But since then, we have had one officer drop out so we will be doing a reelection for 2 to 3 new officers at large. Besides that, we are coming to a close on most forestry things.
- The art show went well. As many of you saw, there was a large crowd and a lot of pieces entered into the show. Many were from Mrs. Hickey art classes, but there were also several from woodshop and welding. The awards ceremony had a large crowd as well, and an outside judge showed up and voted on the different pieces for several different categories, mixed media, drawing, 3-D, and others. Prizes were distributed as well for the top three winners, and honorable mentions. Several winners included Jilliam, Jose, Zane, and Shelbi. Soloists from all three schools were also present and performed live. Overall, from what I gathered, it went well. In fact, Mrs. Hickey is planning on doing the show again next year and expanding to display more class's art. To do this, however, they need more display panels to accommodate the ever growing program. They have the space in the gym, but more tables and, more importantly, panels would be great to have. Overall, everyone in attendance could see that the show was a success and that Mrs. Hickey is excited to begin planning the next one.
